Warrants issued in skater's case

by David Foster
The Associated Press

PORTLAND, Ore. -- Arrest warrants were issued in the attack on Olympic figure skater Nancy Kerrigan, authorities said Thursday. ABC News reported that a second person confessed to the plot, said to involve rival Tonya Harding's ex-husband and bodyguard.

The FBI arrested a man at Portland Airport on a flight from Phoenix; Port of Portland spokesman Doug Roberts refused to give any details about him. ABC identified the man as Derrick Smith of Phoenix, and described him as the second man to confess his involvement in the alleged conspiracy to injure Kerrigan.

The network also described a Portland man, Shane Stant, as the alleged hit man who carried out the attack on Kerrigan at the U.S. Figure Skating Championships in Detroit on Jan. 6.

The assailant escaped after breaking the glass out of a locked arena door.

In Detroit, deputy police chief Benny Napoleon said "warrants have been issued," but he did not specify the number of warrants or who had been named. Portland authorities refused to confirm that warrants had been issued but said they expected to make arrests Thursday on conspiracy charges.

Earlier Thursday, Boston TV station WCVB reported that warrants were issued in Portland for Harding's ex-husband, Jeff Gillooly; bodyguard Shawn Eric Eckardt; Smith; and Stant.

The station also reported Harding was named in the warrants, but authorities in Portland and Detroit denied that.

Eckardt told authorities that Gillooly asked him to arrange the attack, The Oregonian newspaper reported Thursday, citing unidentified law enforcement sources. Harding and Gillooly were divorced Aug. 28, but later reconciled and have lived together since October.

After Kerrigan was clubbed on the knee, she was forced to withdraw from the figure skating championships, raising doubts about her ability to compete in the Winter Olympics in Lillehammer, Norway, Feb. 12-27.

The U.S. Figure Skating Association named Kerrigan to the Olympic team anyway, along with Harding, 23, who went on to win the championship. Kerrigan won a bronze medal at the 1992 Winter Games in Albertville, France.

The charge of conspiracy to commit assault is a felony punishable by up to 10 years in prison and a $100,000 fine, Oregon officials said.

Judge to ignore violating motion

by Joe Peliffer
News staff writer

Former Falcon football player Akili Hutchinson may have to face a shock probation hearing in front of the judge who read prosecution's motion opposing his early release.

Hutchinson was sentenced to two years for burglary and 60 days for sexual imposition on Sept. 24 of last year. His sentence for a sexual battery charge was suspended in lieu of five years probation.

Judge Charles Kurfess, the presiding judge for the trial, also read the motion filed by assistant prosecuting attorney Gwen Howe-Geber opposing Hutchinson's early release through shock probation. The motion was later withdrawn when it was discovered the opposition was in violation of a plea agreement made by a previous prosecutor.

Kurfess said he will have to rule on the hearing because of a statute allowing another judge to hear the case only when the present judge is absent.

Kathleen Culkowski, Hutchinson's attorney, has a right to be upset, said Kurfess.

"She has a legitimate complaint," Kurfess said. However, he said, since the opposition was withdrawn, Kurfess said he didn't believe the motion would affect his decision.

"I recognize it can sometimes be difficult [to put aside withdrawn evidence]," Kurfess said. "But, I'm a judge, I know what I'm supposed to consider and not supposed to consider."

Scott Coon, former prosecutor on the Hutchinson case, agrees with Kurfess.

"I think the judge is going to take into consideration what the attorneys have to say," Coon said. "But the real weight is in the victim's [testimony]."

A one-time girlfriend of Hutchinson, who wished to remain anonymous, was upset at the news of the prosecution's plea violation.

"It think what [the prosecution] did was unfair," she said. "I support Akili."

According to Coon and Culkowski, Howe-Geber violated another part of the plea agreement when she sent a press release to the media.

Clinton, Yeltsin talk change

by Nancy Benac
The Associated Press

MOSCOW -- President Clinton and Boris Yeltsin pledged Thursday to press ahead with reforms that will "make life better" for restive Russians. The two also were ready to stop aiming nuclear missiles at each other's countries.

In hours of Kremlin talk and over dinner at Yeltsin's country dacha, the two leaders agreed that Russia could not afford to backpedal on painful economic reforms despite mounting public dissatisfaction.

Anticipated Reforms

- ✓ Stop aiming nuclear missiles at each other's countries.
- ✓ Instead, the weapons would now be aimed at ocean waters.
- ✓ The rest of the weapons would have no specific target.

The crowds loved Clinton in Moscow, surging to get close enough for a glimpse or even a handshake, cheering when he waved his fur hat in the chilly air.

"We'll work together," Clinton assured stolid Muscovites lined up for bread in a downtown bakery. "All these folks working hard need to know that in the end they will be rewarded."

"I wish you success," one woman replied.

Welcoming Clinton to the opulent Grand Palace at the Kremlin, Yeltsin predicted the three-day summit would produce "profound," "practical," and "sweeping" results. Privately, he assured Clinton "there is no turning back" from the drive for free-market reforms, U.S. officials reported.

Secretary of State Warren Christopher said the Americans came away reassured that Russian leaders were "redoubling their efforts to move forward with the reform process."

"More attention has to be paid to easing some of the hardships that we've heard about," said Treasury Secretary Lloyd Bentsen.

Asked if he wanted more U.S. aid, Yeltsin said, "Not more than was promised already."

During an impromptu side tour through downtown shops and kiosks, Clinton told Muscovites that he and Yeltsin were "talking about how we can work together to make life better for the working people of your country."

"The whole conversation was about how our work together can help change the lives of ordinary Russian people for the better," he said.

Clinton brought together influential Russians from a variety of fields and political backgrounds for an evening reception at the residence of the U.S. ambassador.

"As I look around this room at the faces of tomorrow's Russia, people from different political parties ... people who are in private enterprises, I say to you: There is lots of room for difference of opinion," Clinton told the group.

He added that while he had traveled to Moscow as a supporter of democratic change, "In the end, you will have to decide your future. American support can certainly not make all the difference, and American direction is unwarranted."

Officials want state funds for day care

by Leah Barnum
News staff writer

After gathering preliminary information, University officials have determined that there is sufficient need for a day care center on campus, and they are pursuing the possibility with a request for state funds.

A request for funds specifically for the project is being prepared for the Ohio Board of Regents, according to Philip Mason, vice president for University Relations.

"The Board of Regents has been encouraging" in regards to the day care proposal, he said.

There is grant money available for the specific purpose of starting day-care centers, said John Moore, executive director of personnel services at the University, who conducted the original survey to determine the need of such a facility on campus.

About $2 million is available for state universities for child care, according to Bob Martin, vice president for operations.

The funds are matching funds, which means that the University must be able to pay 50 percent and the state will pay 50 percent if the grant is approved, Martin said.

Since the day care project is estimated to cost about $1 million, the University is requesting $500,000 from the state and is expected to pay the other half itself, Martin said.

"A decision [whether to pursue the day care facility] will be made based on whether we get a yes answer or a no answer from the state," Moore said.

But even if the state denies the University funding, University administrators may still go ahead with the planning of a day care facility, he said.

Alternative ways to fund the project are also being pursued, Martin said.

Independent groups like local industries, economic development groups and city and county government groups are inter-

E.A.R. to the Ground ...

An ongoing tragic ballet has been witnessed on campus by E.A.R. to the Ground that must have Nureyev spinning in his grave. This spectacle features cars weaving fluidly in and out of commuter lots, searching desperately for a place to rest their steel-belted slippers.

At E.A.R. Central, we're tired of beating our heads against the steering wheel, wondering what it will take to end this motorized misery.

It's obvious the University big boys won't work to end commuter car dances in our parking lots. So we think they should give up their privileged balcony seats and fight their way to the cheap seats like the rest of us.

For now, we advise commuters to get to campus an hour before class if you want to be only ten minutes late.

Justice may or may not be blind. Here in the Black Swamp it seems to be just plain dumb. Thanks to a miscommunication or something of that order at the county prosecutor's office, convicted burglar and sex offender (not to mention former Falcon football standout) Akili Hutchinson could get a break so big he may be tried all over again for rape, sexual imposition and burglary.

We here at E.A.R. central believe the right hand should let the left hand know what it's up to. If members of the prosecution staff would have simply communicated with one another, this whole, messy situation could easily have been avoided. We can only hope in future cases all parties involved will remember to dot their i's and cross their t's.

Parting Shot: Someone should check the University bell tower's Quasimodo for dyslexia. We understand he's chiming Here Comes The Sun at seven in the evening.

Plowing into another year

Welcome to Sam and Mike: The Column. And a special welcome to those of you who are reading this column as you wait in line at the Bursar and Registrar. Remember, no class is truly closed, if you have the will.

As we see it, there are three sure-fire, last-resort methods to get into a closed class:

1. Set the secretaries, professors and registrar workers against each other. "Well, I talked to someone in this office on Wednesday and she said that I could get in if I got permission of the professor and he said 'Sure' but that I had to talk to the secretary and she said come here." Lie if you must.

2. Threaten somebody's life. "No, you don't understand. I just found out that I need this section to graduate in May. And if I don't graduate in May, my parents are going to kill me! DON'T YOU GET IT? I'M GOING TO DIE! And if I'm going to die, I'M TAKING YOU WITH ME!"

3. Cry.

Like you, we've spent most of the week standing in line and filling out forms. But we did manage to get to Prout Cafeteria to mill around and scribble some things on a napkin and call it a column. We weren't here on New Year's Day, but the following is an account of what we think happened: BG mayor Wes Hoffman woke up on New Year's Day in an inquisitive mood. "Why the hell have we been plowing snow into the MIDDLE of the street?" he asked. "While the rest of the world removes snow from their streets, we merely redistribute it."

He sprang from his bed and looked out his window at the new fallen snow. "This is mad! Mad, I tell you! I must end the madness!"

Sam

That guy who plays the organ at Falcon hockey games woke up on New Year's Day with a renewed determination. "Canned Top 40 has no place at the Ice Arena, live music does," he protested. "I have been done wrong, and so has the pep band. Do we need to hear 'Life is a Highway' at games? We need me! Me! And more pep band!" So he leapt out of bed, smashed every Def Leppard CD he could find and dusted off his organ.

The creator of the "new and improved" Star System woke up on New Year's Day in a reflective mood. "Boy, oh boy, I sure screwed that baby up didn't I?" he asked himself.

He certainly did. Every Open Registration season, his new Star System seems to have a nervous breakdown and collapse. "In some lines of work, I would be fired for such incompetence," he said, "in some societies, I would be shot."

Richard Zeller, political mastermind behind the Election Day exit poll that projected Mike Ferner as mayor of Toledo, woke up on New Year's Day in the same mood as the Star System's computer wiz. He then came to his senses and reassured himself.

Mike
Cook

"I'm no idiot! I'm not! They were just lying to me. That's all the voters of Toledo are - just a bunch of stinkin' liars. All of 'em! Liars! Ooh, I hate them!"

Downtown Business Association director Jim Tinker woke up on New Year's Day ready to continue his successful quest to bring more shoppers downtown. 1993 was a good year for the DBA, with the success of the Black Swamp Arts Festival, the sidewalk sales and the Holiday Parade.

"1994 will surely be a success!" exclaimed Jim. "Hopefully, we'll attract quality merchants to the vacant stores. Perhaps a Lands End! Or maybe even a Victoria's Secret!"

Jim's optimism was dampened only by one fear: Potential shoppers driving downtown, only to be killed in multi-car accidents caused by snow plowed into the middle of the road. "That certainly wouldn't be beneficial for the downtown merchants," pondered Jim. "Ya know, if I were mayor..."

Fellow News columnist James Walters woke up on New Year's Day ready to offend all of Bowling Green. He gazed longingly at the poster of a shirtless Ronald Reagan above his bed. James smiled and sighed. He put on his bathrobe (with red, white and blue elephants on it), filled his Rush Limbaugh mug with fresh coffee and began to work on his first column of the semester:

WAKE UP BOWLING GREEN, WHITEWATER-GATE IS UPON US! IMPEACH CLINTON NOW! I'M RIGHT, I'M RIGHT, SO SHUT UP! DIE LIBERALS, DIE!

The vice president of Sub-Pop Records woke up on New Year's Day hearing voices. "The Seattle scene is cool, granted. But you must travel to a land they call Bowling Green, Ohio."

"You must go to the 3rd annual AIDS Benefit Concert, to take place in February. You must hear Gone Daddy Finch. You must experience Paste. You must become one with the Sweaty Whiskers. You must sign them all to multi-album deals." (Sam and Mike Plug their Various Side Projects: First in a Series.)

BG Public Works Director William Blair woke up on New Year's Day in a pleasant mood. "SNOW!" he bellowed gleefully. "More snow for me to have plowed into the middle of the streets! Hee, hee! No one will be able to make a U-turn! Or even a left-turn! No one will ever see the yellow lines again! NO ONE! Not even in July! Hee, hee! The snow will only get higher and higher and..."

He then sprung from his bed, climbed to the top of the Hotel Millikin so he could have a better view of his mad creation. "Hee, hee!"

Brother Jed woke up on New Year's Day with the thought of getting a real job in 1994. "Nah!" he shouted proudly. Jed then rolled over, dominated his wife, brain washed his kids, misinterpreted the Bible and rooted for Notre Dame in the Cotton Bowl.

One woman vs. a school Should The Citadel enroll Shannon Faulkner?

Down South Carolina way 18-year-old Shannon Faulkner has taken a long-overdue whack at an outdated, male-dominated bastion in dire need of whacking.

Shannon wants to enter The Citadel, a state-supported all-male military college. The school wanted her too, until the administration realized that she's a woman. Her grades, background, and character were good enough, but her gender wasn't. The U.S. Supreme Court ordered her admittance. It's the same old sad case of the boys' clubhouse with a "No Girls Allowed" sign posted on the door. The Citadel is 151-years-old; its attitude is positively Cro-Magnon.

No intelligent, motivated, capable individual should be denied an education of choice by virtue of sex or tired Victorian traditions. Especially an individual like Shannon, whose accomplishments and abilities were initially accepted by the very institution now filing court appeals to keep her out.

Barriers still standing from a past era that was not kind or fair to women should be permanently removed. Potential should not be discouraged or rejected because it comes in female form.

Like the education they dispense, state-supported schools are meant for everyone. Using a dusty, chauvinistic tradition from another time as an excuse for denial is a blatant violation of rights.

The final decision is now in the hands of Chief Justice William Rehnquist. Let's hope he's firmly planted in the 20th century. David Coehrs is a weekly columnist for The BG News.

Andy Warhol was right. Everyone does get 15 minutes of fame.

I hope Shannon Faulkner has a good watch and is aware of the fact that she should be keeping track of her dwindling 15 minutes of fame.

It's quite obvious Faulkner knew she wouldn't be allowed to attend day classes at The Citadel when she deleted the references to her gender from her transcripts. When The Citadel handed her a rejection she handed them a lawsuit in return. Why? It's simple, The Citadel is an all men's school.

And what is wrong with that? I don't believe it is sexist for men to have the option to receive their education at an all-men's college. Women have the same option to be educated among their own sex on a collegiate level, but you rarely hear men complaining about not being admitted.

If Shannon had the grades and qualifications to be accepted by The Citadel, I'm sure she could have easily been admitted into any of the thousands of colleges in this country and receive the same, if not better, education.

Except there aren't many other colleges that offer the same controversy that the all-male Citadel offers.

I don't believe her motives were to break new ground for women by challenging the admissions policy of The Citadel. Instead, I believe her main goal was to rock the boat, create controversy and get her picture in the paper. Well, if I'm correct, she's already accomplished her main goal.

What's that I hear in the background? A stop watch?

Hey Shannon, seven minutes and counting!

Breaking out

WHEELING, W.Va. -- An Ohio County Jail inmate picked the easiest exit to freedom three days before he was to be sent to Ohio to face charges.

Authorities searched Tuesday for Irvin J. Rill, 35, of Dover, N.J., said Ohio County sheriff's Deputy Charlie Murphy.

Rill was serving sentences in Wheeling for breaking and entering, grand larceny and failure to appear in court when he escaped Monday night, Murphy said.

Rill pried open two steel doors without being heard, Murphy said.

"He basically had traveled from location to location, doing breaking and enterings to survive ... and if you could see these doors, you would know that he is very good at his profession," Murphy said.

The doors are the least-secure in the jail and located near the furnace room close to a lot of noise, Murphy said. Rill also took advantage of the jail's skeleton staff, Murphy said.

Rill was jailed May 24 and was scheduled to be released Thursday after he completed his sentences. He was to be sent to face charges in Muskingum County, Ohio, after his release, officials said.

Rill also is wanted in Pennsylvania and Maryland, Murphy said.

The charges Rill faces include assault, manufacturing and distributing drugs and burglary, Murphy said. He did not know which charges were filed in which states.

Rill apparently decided to break out after learning he was wanted in Maryland, Murphy said.

Doherty says she quit

RADNOR, Pa. -- This just in. Shannen Doherty says she wasn't fired from "Beverly Hills, 90210." "I quit," she said.

In an interview being published in TV Guide's Jan. 23 issue, she called it a "mutual decision" between her and producer Aaron Spelling.

"We backed each other against the wall," Doherty said. "I feel no sadness. Who wants to get up at 5 a.m. and leave the arms of your husband and go work for 12 hours in a job in which you're miserable?"

Doherty last year married Ashley Hamilton, son of actor George Hamilton.

Spelling, whose daughter, Tori, also stars in FOX-TV's "90210," said only that "Shannen knows why she will not be on the show next year."

"I wish Shannen luck in whatever she does in the future," he said.

Doherty said she is working on a feature film called "Blindfold." She said she also wants to turn her attention to Hamilton.

"When I started the show, all I cared about was my career," she said. "Now I care about being with my husband. I take my marriage seriously."

About to go free

LOS ANGELES -- A man who pleaded guilty to killing another man 20 years ago has been sentenced to probation for lack of evidence.

Robert Lee Perkins, 48, smiled Tuesday after Superior Court Judge Isabel Cohen imposed the five-year probationary sentence and 250 hours of community service, then ordered his release from jail.

Perkins of Montgomery, Ala., spent two decades as a fugitive after shooting 37-year-old Rupert W. Davis in Los Angeles on Dec. 11, 1973, in a dispute over a woman. Perkins was arrested in November and pleaded guilty to manslaughter.

Deputy District Attorney Gregory Dohi said the prosecution entered into a plea bargain because evidence was missing after two decades and the only surviving witness suffered from memory problems. He said Perkins had stayed clear of trouble since the killing.

THEY SAID IT

"We backed each other against the wall. I feel no sadness. Who wants to get up at 5 a.m. and leave the arms of your husband and go work for 12 hours in a job in which you're miserable?"

At the Detroit news conference Thursday, Napoleon said a woman from out-of-state called the police department Saturday and insisted on speaking with him.

"She indicated to me that she heard a conversation regarding the planned assault on Nancy Kerrigan," several months ago, Napoleon said. "She put it off as somebody talking. Once the assault occurred, she became frightened. She wanted to make sure that the people responsible were apprehended."

Napoleon said the woman identified about four people, and he passed the names along to the FBI. The woman said she listened to a tape of the conversation a few months ago.

"I am not going to indicate who she implicated to me," Napoleon said. He said Harding was not implicated.

The plot allegedly involved Eckardt, Gillooly, an Eckardt acquaintance in Phoenix and a Portland man who hit Kerrigan for $100,000. The Oregonian newspaper reported.

NBC News on Wednesday quoted sources as saying that after the men met in Portland, the hit man went to Boston, where Kerrigan lives and trains.

IFC, Panhel councils elect new members

by Courtney Gangemi
News staff writer

The University Interfraternity and the Panhellenic councils installed new office members at the end of fall semester.

IFC consists of seven office members who are in charge of all programming for fraternity chapters. Within this region, IFC actively oversees rush week for each fraternity on campus, according to John Hornsby, vice president of membership development.

"We are a governing body for all chapters," Hornsby said.

The new IFC members include President Bret Haggy; James Forse, vice president for internal affairs; and Sean Mulder, vice president for rush. Vice president for membership development is John Hornsby, and the chief administrator is John Strmac. The secretary of IFC is Joe Romano, and Zach Green holds the office of treasurer.

Hornsby said IFC membership development will focus more on programming for all chapters. Chapters must participate in a certain amount of programming each semester to keep their houses, he added.

"We plan to set up programs each month that chapters can participate in," Hornsby said.

Panhel held elections last semester and seven new members are on their office staff.

"The Panhellenic Council is a governing body overseeing sorority life on University campuses," President Ginger Bowerman said.

The council plans to continue to strengthen communication lines between itself and the IFC, Bowerman added.

"We plan to represent Panhel with refreshed professional and motivated executive, council and cabinet members," she said.

The new members include President Ginger Bowerman, Tricia Savarese as vice president of membership development, Jennifer Keck as vice president for rush and Heather Bessler as vice president of Rho Chi's - Rush counselors.

The new cabinet director is Maggie Wickert and Larissa Hritsko will be the secretary. Colleen Flaherty was chosen treasurer.

Each office position is made up of a variety of women from different chapters on campus, Flaherty said.

"The Panhel hopes to serve as a resource to all chapters in order to assist in chapter excellence," Bowerman said.

Chapter excellence is an award a chapter can receive for participation in every aspect of the greek life community on campus and nationally, Flaherty said.

Bowerman said she hopes Panhel can strengthen its community relations in the future.

"We want to make the Care Fair a larger community involved event, hopefully this year or next," Bowerman said.

Panhel meets Tuesday nights and IFC meets every Monday night.

isted in having a day care facility at the University, and are pursuing federal grant money for that purpose, officials said.

The most recent budget request occurred after the child care committee submitted a report to President Paul Olscamp before winter break illustrating the need for a day care facility at the University, according to Bob Kreienkamp, chairman of Classified Staff Council.

The report was based on information gathered by Personnel Services through a survey last October.

"The recommendation went from our group [to Olscamp] that there seemed to be sufficient need for a child care facility on campus," Kreienkamp said. "Our recommendation was for that to be pursued."

Although the University requested funds for a day care facility in their 1993 biennial capital budget request -- which also includes fund requests for other needs -- it did not receive enough money to cover the facility, which was about 10th on the list of priorities, Martin said.

"The level of funds available wouldn't reach that far down the list," he said.

In the capital budget request, which was submitted nine months before the need assessment for the day care center was made, the University requested about $25 million and received only $13.8 million, Martin added.

Director to speak at writers forum

by Cynthia Kent
News staff writer

Teri Sharp, award-winning director of news services at the University, will speak to members and guests of the North-west Ohio Writers Forum Saturday.

The forum will take place at the Toledo-Lucas County Public Library, 2753 W. Central Ave.

Sharp will outline how free-lance writers can market features about University alumni to University publications, develop features about the University and how writers can use University facilities for research.

"My goal is to familiarize the audience with University resources for writers and how the University is a source of information for research," Sharp said.

At the forum, Sharp will explain how free-lance writers can use many University resources, like the Archival, Pop Culture and Sound collections.

MLK tribute planned

by Melissa Lipowski
News staff reporter

The University Task Force on Issues of Diversity, in cooperation with other campus organizations, will be sponsoring a two-day tribute to Martin Luther King Jr. Monday and Tuesday.

The event will include an open-microphone tribute to King as well as a formal presentation by Marshall Rose on King's rarely published speeches, said David Unruh, the co-chair of the Task Force on Issues of Diversity.

The open-microphone tribute will take place in the Amani Activities Room in the Northeast Commons on Monday from 4 p.m. to 8 p.m. It will feature participants as well as audience members who wish to voice their concerns about the civil rights movement and their political perspectives, Unruh said.

"During the open-microphone tribute, all of the audience members are invited to come in with an interest in speaking or to just get up on a whim and talk or share speeches, poems or personal reflections," Unruh said.

The formal presentation "Eye to Eye with MLK," will take place in the Conference Room of the Jerome Library from noon until 2 p.m. on Tuesday, Unruh said.

"Since it is so common for people to recognize Dr. Martin Luther King Jr. by his most famous speeches, including his 'I Have a Dream' speech, the Task Force has decided to focus on some of Dr. King's less famous speeches," he said.

During the presentation, students and faculty members who attend the event are encouraged to share their responses, he said. In addition, they are encouraged to bring brown bag lunches.

Task Force hosts tribute

by Richard Leva
News staff writer

The city has scheduled a number of events starting this weekend to commemorate the life of Martin Luther King Jr.

A program sponsored by the city will take place today at the City Administrative Services Building, 304 N. Church St.

Nena Thames, principal at Milton Elementary School, is scheduled to speak at 7:30 a.m. and 8:15 a.m. in council chambers.

Thames said King was an important influence on her life and his words are still relevant today.

"His message, particularly from the 'I Have a Dream' speech and his teachings throughout his public life are so relevant," Thames said. "Those things about segregation, poverty, discrimination and violence are in the headlines every day. They have not gone away and still need to be addressed."

Bins make recycling easier

by Larissa Hritsko
News staff writer

Carrying recyclables from the residence hall room to the building's recycling center does not have to be such a chore this semester due to new recycling bins in each room.

The recycling bins, located in every residence room, are a strategy aimed at increasing the recycling of newspapers, cans, plastic and glass, according to Craig Wittig, coordinator of the campus recycling center.

The idea originated from the similar city effort of the curbside recycling program, Wittig said.

"Our idea came from the curbside programs with the red containers," he said. "With the new bins we are hoping people will find it easier to recycle."

The bins, which were purchased from an approximate $23,000 grant from the Wood County Solid Waste District, will also be placed in every University office to promote the recycling of paper, he said.

"We looked at other universities' recycling efforts and found that the majority of them recycled paper. With this new strategy we are hoping that paper recycling will double or triple, recycling between 20,000 to 30,000 tons a month," Wittig said.

Within the next two weeks, an additional 500 bins will be offered to all greek units.

The majority of the greek units are expected to accept the recycling bins, according to Wayne Colvin, director of Greek Life and Residential Services.

The new bins are expected to make the recycling process as convenient as possible for students and University employees, Colvin said.

"The recycling bins should be a great success of the University to increase the efforts of students recycling material," he said.

City appeals to businesses

DBA works to bring new enterprises to Bowling Green

by Tara Stubbs
News staff writer

Bowling Green's landscape has become a lot more fertile in the past few years, and it has nothing to do with agriculture.

The Downtown Business Association has made Bowling Green more appealing to new businesses, and 12 new businesses have sprung up in the city in the past year.

The businesses were TMH Sporting Goods, The Pharm, Wal-Mart, Club 21, The Heat, Chi Chi's, The Greek Mart, Bullethead, Kaleidoscope, El Alcapulco, Mecca and North Coast Insignia.

Kaleidoscope owner Amy Potter, also known as Falcon to her customers, said the store sells a little bit of everything. Just a few of the items they sell are home-made bath beads, massage and perfume oils, dream catchers and over 100 varieties of incense.

"The whole theme is - something new at every turn," Potter said.

The store also offers several services. People can set up appointments to have Tarot cards read, have their palms read or set up appointments with an astrologer.

The store opened Oct. 18. Potter said she decided to open Kaleidoscope in Bowling Green because she has lived here all her life. She felt it was the right time to open up this type of store.

"All the stars and planets were aligned," Potter said.

Potter said the business is doing better than expected and the response has been overwhelming. She has customers who come from Lima, Ohio Defiance, Ohio, Mansfield, Ohio and Ann Arbor, Mich.

"The store provides a positive, friendly atmosphere with consistent, quality products," Potter said.

Another new business, North Coast Insignia, opened its doors to the public April 1. But in July it moved to East Wooster Street. Manager Dwayne Colston said the business chose Bowling Green because the store does a lot of insignia for fraternities and sororities.

Colston said they also sell a lot of Bowling Green insignia. He said customers have from 35 to 40 different designs and patterns from which to choose. The insignia can be applied to many different items.

"Insignia can be applied to sweatshirts, T-shirts, hats and stuff," Colston said.

Colston said North Coast Insignia has a contract with the University that enables the store to sell its merchandise at all home games including football, hockey, and basketball.

At the games North Coast sells just about everything - miniature footballs, pennants, pencils, pens, hats and other merchandise, Colston said.

"Being able to sell merchandise at the games helps business out a lot because it allows people to learn our name," Colston said.

The Greek Mart is another business that opened its doors to the Bowling Green public in the past year. It opened in mid-August right before sorority rush, said owner Dave Berland.

Berland said he looked at many other cities but chose Bowling Green because of the size of the greek community and because it is the epitome of a college town.

"There is not another store in Bowling Green that specifically caters to the greek community in Bowling Green," Berland said.

Not only does the store offer sorority and fraternity merchandise, it also offers customized products for everyone. Berland said The Greek Mart produces shirts and other products for many sports teams and intramurals. The store also does screen printing and glassware.

Computers in Ohio schools will be costly

by Katie Carroll
News staff writer

Gov. George Voinovich's $45 million plan to bring computers to Ohio classrooms is receiving mixed reviews from local educators and public officials, with most of the opposition directed toward the cost of the proposal.

In his fourth annual State of the State speech, given to a joint session of the Ohio House and Senate last week, Voinovich shared his plan to put a computer and related equipment into every classroom in the poorest 25 percent of school districts statewide.

"The idea of installing computers in every classroom is very good; it will be most educational, especially on the elementary level," said Eric Myers, principal of Bowling Green High School. "At the same time, I think the plan is very costly and it will probably be a year until the school sees its direct results."

Although Voinovich's plan will help schools with little funding, some people question how his assessment will help middle-class districts, like Bowling Green schools.

"He may be helping 25 percent of the poorest school districts, but what about the other 75 percent of school districts across Ohio?" asked Elaine Ezell, computer representative of Bowling Green Junior High School.

"By pumping money into the wealthy and poor districts, we're creating a new type of poverty that affects the schools in the middle," she said. "The wealthier and poorer schools are qualifying for money but what do they expect the schools like Bowling Green to do?"

Representatives of the governor's office were unavailable for comment at press time.

Voinovich said he also plans to improve the quality of educators in Ohio schools. This process would include the evaluation of teacher job performance, removing those teachers who fail to show improvement. He also wants to give school districts with low funding an extra $70 million for building renovation or construction.

Another dispute about the plans came from State Senator Robert Burch, who argues that under Voinovich, Ohio's unemployment rate is up while its jobs are down.

"Like Pollyanna, George Voinovich sees Ohio's economy only through rose-colored glasses," Burch said. "Once again, George Voinovich is out of touch. The economic reality for most Ohioans includes declining real income levels, unacceptably high unemployment levels and record high poverty levels."

list was ultranationalist Vladimir Zhirinovskiy, a leader of Yeltsin's foes. The Liberal Democratic Party's strong showing in recent parliamentary elections was seen as a reflection of rising public dissatisfaction with Yeltsin's reforms.

"We need no help from the United States and the West," Zhirinovskiy sniped from the sidelines. "We are a very rich country, very strong, very rich."

Clinton warned, "The oldest of society's demons plague us still, the hatreds of people for one another based on their race, their religion, their ethnic group, even the piece of ground they happen to have been born on."

The two leaders turned their attention to foreign policy in an evening session at the Russian leader's country home outside Moscow.

Bosnia and the Middle East were among the subjects discussed over a dinner that stretched to three hours and featured a 23-item-long menu with such oddities as lip of moose and pelmeni fish dumplings.

Administration officials said the two would sign an agreement Friday to stop targeting their nuclear missiles at each other. Some would be aimed at ocean waters; others would have no specific target.

KKK to rally in eight cities

Group plans to protest commemoration of King's birthday

by Jerl Waters
The Associated Press

COLUMBUS -- The Ku Klux Klan said it will rally in eight U.S. cities this weekend to protest commemoration of Martin Luther King Jr.'s birthday.

The NAACP and other anti-Klan groups planned counterdemonstrations, including protests in the neighborhoods of some Klan leaders.

A Klan spokesman said the white supremacist group would call for repeal of the national holiday honoring the slain civil rights leader. King's birthday is Saturday; the national observance is Monday.

"We don't feel he should have a national holiday honoring him, since before there was just holidays honoring Christ and the presidents. It brings down the other holidays when you honor a degenerate such as King," said Vincent Pinette, grand titan for the realm of Ohio.

The rallies at state capitols in Ohio, Colorado, Arkansas, Kansas, Alabama, Florida, Texas and Illinois are being organized by the Knights of the Ku Klux Klan's national office in Harrison, Ark.

The rallies will be the second national KKK protest against the King holiday.

The Klan protested last year in Denver, Montgomery, Ala., and Austin, Texas.

Violence broke out in Denver last year among some 500 anti-Klan protesters, while thousands marched to honor King and two dozen white supremacists rallied at the state Capitol.

About 50 anti-Klan demonstrators broke away from the rally, smashed the windows of a liquor store and beat a white woman unconscious.

Rallies in other cities were peaceful. The Klan will rally Friday and Sunday in Denver. On Saturday, rallies are planned in Columbus; Little Rock, Ark.; Topeka, Kan.;

Montgomery; Tallahassee, Fla.; and Austin. A rally also is planned Sunday in Springfield, Ill.

Anti-Klan groups in some cities planned protests to coincide with the rallies.

Pinette said as many as 50 Klan members would protest in Columbus Saturday.

Police and State Highway Patrol troopers, who guard the Statehouse, would not discuss their plans for security. However, a security fence similar to one erected at a KKK rally there in October was installed Wednesday.

Few arrests and no serious altercations were reported at the Oct. 23 rally.

The Ohio Freedom Fighter Coalition, a group including the Columbus chapter of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People, said members would protest at Saturday's rally.

Klan opponents called for a boycott of downtown Columbus businesses to show that the rally would cause merchants to lose business.

Jury decides airline lawsuit

The Associated Press

CLEVELAND -- A federal jury decided Thursday that USAir would not have to pay punitive damages for a March 1992 crash at New York's LaGuardia Airport that killed 27 people.

Jurors were asked to determine whether the airline had been reckless in the operation of the Cleveland-bound airplane, which plunged into Flushing Bay after taking off during a snowstorm.

Twenty-four other passengers and crew members were injured.

The jury's decision came two days after U.S. District Judge Thomas D. Lambros ruled that the airline acted negligently in the March 22, 1992, crash and would have to pay compensatory damages, such as medical expenses and lost wages. The amounts will be determined later by jurors.

Punitive damages could not have been assessed unless jurors felt the airline's actions were reckless.

Stanley Chesley, lead attorney for the injured and the estates and relatives of those killed, said he was pleased the airline at least would have to pay victims for their losses.

"We would have liked to get the punitive damages to send a message for safer air practices," Chesley said. "Money was not the issue."

Chesley said his clients were pleased to have a chance to air the issues in court. He said they were satisfied with the jury's decision.

USAir spokesman Dave Shipley said the company also was satisfied with the jury's decision and was prepared to pay "reasonable compensatory damages."

National Transportation Safety Board investigators concluded that the crash probably was caused by a buildup of ice and snow on the wings of the Fokker F28-4000.

Attorneys for the victims had argued that USAir issued contradictory guidelines about the amount of ice that could be tolerated on the wings of Fokker F28s.

They also charged that the airline had chosen a cheaper deicing fluid that did not last as long as more expensive products. They said USAir knew about several Fokker F28 crashes linked to wing icing but took no action.

USAir conceded in its opening arguments Nov. 29 that the crew made mistakes, but said company policies were not to blame.

The airline said it would not contest the negligence ruling but said human error did not warrant punitive damages.

Opponents upset with letter

by Margaret Pozenel
The Associated Press

COLUMBUS -- A campaign letter from U.S. Senate candidate Mike DeWine misleads potential contributors by implying that the National Republican Senatorial Committee and its chairman support him, an opponent said Thursday.

DeWine's campaign denied the charge.

"The letter heavily implies and, in one case, basically states that the Senatorial Committee and Sen. (Phil) Gramm has or is supporting DeWine's candidacy. That is absolutely untrue," said Ray Sullivan, spokesman for the campaign of Bernadine Healy, who also is seeking the GOP nomination.

"It is a blatant attempt to mislead the recipients of the letter to believe that."

The Jan. 10 letter says Gramm asked DeWine to run for the seat being vacated by retiring U.S. Sen. Howard Metzenbaum, D-Ohio. The Texas senator is chairman of the committee.

The letter solicits contributions and says, "I believe the Senatorial Committee will do everything they can to help in my election victory."

DeWine makes it clear on the pledge sheet that the money goes to the primary election, but the letter is deceptive because it does not, Sullivan said.

The Senatorial Committee has met with DeWine, Ms. Healy and Gene Watts, another candidate for the GOP nomination, and will not endorse any candidate until the general election, said Gary Koops, spokesman for the committee.

Koops said he had not seen the letter and would not comment on it.

The letter does not imply an endorsement, said Laurel Pressler, campaign manager for DeWine.

"It means exactly what it says. They're doing the things that they can do to help us," Ms. Pressler said.

Circus train jumps tracks

Two Ringling Bros. performers killed in locomotive derailment

by James Martinez
The Associated Press

LAKELAND, Fla. -- A train carrying Ringling Bros. circus performers and animals derailed Thursday at a crossing, killing an elephant trainer and a clown. Fourteen people were injured.

As rescue crews worked on the wreck, a news helicopter covering the derailment crashed a half-mile away in a ballfield next to a junior high school, injuring the pilot and a photographer.

Sixteen cars jumped the tracks shortly after 9 a.m. as the train with 53 cars and three locomotives traveled across Florida from St. Petersburg to Orlando, where the Ringling Bros. and Barnum & Bailey circus was to open Friday night.

"The show always goes on. I suspect we will be late, but the show always goes on," said David Cohen, the circus manager and a passenger on the train.

Theodore Svertesky, 39, an elephant trainer, was killed in a housing car, Polk County sheriff's Maj. Grady Judd said.

A clown, Ceslee Conkling, 28,

"The show always goes on. I suspect we will be late, but the show always goes on."

David Cohen, circus manager was found dead in another car.

Fourteen circus workers were treated at a hospital and released. None of the 25 children on board were hurt.

Cars that jumped the tracks carried staff, performers and equipment, said circus spokesman Rodney Huey from his office in Vienna, Va. There were 50 elephants, lions, bears and horses on board, none in the derailed cars.

"It was just people screaming; people hollering for help," said Freddie Johnson, who works at nearby motorcycle shop and raced to help. "I just started kicking doors in. I was able to get a few of them out."

The cause of the derailment in heavy fog wasn't immediately known. The National Transportation Safety Board sent an investigation team.

"We have absolutely no idea what caused the accident. We're not sure of anything right now," Judd said. "The animals are all secure and they've all been fed. They're all in good shape."

After the crash of the helicopter, pilot Mark Bartnick was airlifted to Tampa General Hospital where he was listed in critical condition.

Officials attempt housing integration

by Terri Langford
The Associated Press

VIDOR, Texas -- Under cover of darkness, housing officials moved four black families into an all-white public housing complex Thursday, less than a year after another integration effort failed.

Several Housing and Urban Development Department cars arrived at the complex about 5:30 a.m., an hour before daylight. A caravan of moving trucks passed a police checkpoint twenty minutes later. At least three carloads of black motorists followed the trucks.

By dawn, Vidor had 10 new residents.

"We're all Americans. It should not be an issue," said Julia Ilene Pierce, a white resident who moved into the complex two weeks ago.

As furniture was unloaded from the moving trucks, the four families attended an early-morning orientation by HUD officials in the complex manager's office.

Menendez case ends in mistrial

by Linda Deutsch
The Associated Press

LOS ANGELES -- The judge in Erik Menendez's murder case declared a mistrial on Thursday after jurors reported a third time that they could not reach a verdict.

Jurors first reported an impasse Monday and were told by Superior Court Judge Stanley Weisberg to keep trying.

The jury deliberating charges against Erik's brother Lyle continued its talks after asking the court for more help with legal instructions.

Erik, 23, and his brother, Lyle,

26, admit killing their parents, Jose and Kitty Menendez, in their Beverly Hills mansion Aug. 20, 1989, but claim it was self-defense.

There are two juries in the trial because certain evidence was admissible against only one brother or the other.

District Attorney Gil Garcetti had already said that the case would be retried if there was a mistrial.

The mistrial came in the 19th day of deliberations by Erik's jury.

Erik appeared to look straight ahead as the mistrial was announced and as the judge thanked the jury for nearly a half-year of service.

"The jury feels there is no possibility of reaching a verdict or verdicts without violence to our individual judgments."

Menendez trial jury foreman

"I'm disappointed. Erik's been in jail for four years and he'll be in jail for at least another one," Abramson said.

She said Erik would be willing to plead guilty to manslaughter.

"I've always been willing to negotiate a plea bargain agreement but it has to be the right agreement," she said.

Suzanne Childs, a spokeswoman for the district attorney's office, said prosecutors had no comment on the offer. Weisberg set a Feb. 28 hearing to schedule a new trial date.

"You've made great sacrifices to be here," the judge said before dismissing the panelists.

Earlier Thursday, Erik's jury reported that jurors' strong opinions had become even "more entrenched."

"The jury feels there is no possibility of reaching a verdict or verdicts without violence to our individual judgments," a note from the foreman said.

Weisberg gave the panel new instructions and told jurors to resume deliberating. Later Thursday, the panel again declared itself deadlocked.

Miami stands in way of third straight win

by Marty Fuller
News sports writer

After losing to Toledo in the MAC season opener, the BG women's basketball team will try to string three consecutive wins together. In order to do so, the Falcons must defeat Miami University on Saturday at Anderson Arena.

The BG squad, 8-3 overall, 2-1 in the MAC, comes home with a two-game win streak, averaging over 100 points per game in defeating Kent at home and overcoming a scrappy Ball State team on the road.

"I think our offense has developed a good inside-outside game and we plan to use that to our advantage this weekend," head coach Jaci Clark said.

Clark knows that each conference game is important and that no opponent can be taken lightly. Miami, 6-5 overall, 1-2 in MAC play, needs this game to stay in the early chase and will be ready to face the Falcons.

"There are no surprises, everyone knows we have a good team and other teams are going to mark their season by how they play us," Clark said. "If they play well against Bowling Green maybe they figure they will play well against the rest of the conference."

Miami will show up in Bowling Green this weekend after collecting its first MAC win on Wednesday against Central Michigan. The Falcons are undefeated at home and don't plan on losing on their own court.

The last four meetings between these MAC foes have all been won by BG, but by margins of six or less. Overall, BG holds a 22-12 series edge which includes a 10-6 record at home.

Senior forward Talita Scott has been red hot for the Falcons. She was 11-15 from the field and a perfect 3-3 on the line against Ball State. Besides her 25 points, Scott pulled down six rebounds and had five swipes.

Clark hopes to keep her offensive juggernaut rolling but feels that the key to this game will be BG's slight height advantage when crashing the boards.

"Rebounds are definitely going to be a key to this game; we cannot give Miami any second chances," Clark said.

Miami hopes to drop BG, stay in first place

by Mike Kazimore
News assistant sports editor

The men's basketball team took a giant step forward Wednesday night in trying to dispel the rumor that it is supposed to finish seventh in the Mid-American Conference race.

That step came in the form of a stunning 70-69 upset victory over Ball State, last year's MAC champion. The win marked the first time that the Falcons have walked away with a victory in Muncie, Ind., under the guidance of head coach Jim Larranaga.

Junior center Shane Kline-Ruminski, the man responsible for BG's last-second win, said that beating the Cardinals was very important.

"One of our team goals before the season was to beat Ball State at Ball State," Kline-Ruminski said. "It was a great hard-fought game, and I think the best team won."

Although beating BSU was a major accomplishment, the Falcons will not be able to savor it for long.

Miami University, fresh off of a 76-40 thrashing of Central Michigan, will invade Anderson Arena Saturday at 7:30 p.m. The Redskins will bring an impressive 7-3 overall record to BG, including a perfect 3-0 mark in league play.

Miami, under the direction of first year head coach Herb Sendek, sports a whole new offensive style this season.

Wildcats of Kentucky, where he spent the last four years as an assistant coach.

The Redskins currently rank second in the league in scoring at 84.2 points per game. Much of MU's offense has been coming

Last year the Redskins used a very deliberate offensive system and a hard-nosed, man-to-man defense to keep the score of the game in the low 50s. This year, however, Sendek has his squad running and gunning like the from sophomore guard Landon Hackim.

Hackim, a long range specialist, has already scored over 20 points on five occasions this year.

Swimmers behind 8-ball

MAKING A SPLASH: Falcon swimmer Kevin Grotke speeds toward the finish line in recent breaststroke competition. Grotke

by Mark Leonard DeChant
sports editor

Ever hear the expression "behind the 8-ball"?

The women's swim team has placed itself squarely behind the proverbial bad-luck ball as it prepares to host a dual meet against Ohio University Saturday.

Both the men's and women's squads will be in action, as the Falcons kick off their Mid-American Conference schedule at 1 p.m. at Cooper Pool.

The women will face some serious adversity against the Bobcats. Some factors the Falcons will be addressing include:

- * the fact that Bowling Green has not swum competitively since December 5, when they hosted Purdue.

- * they will be facing the Bobcats, who have not lost a MAC dual meet in six years and are five-time defending conference champions.

"I really have no clue how we'll do. We could be stale, fresh, lethargic or good."

swimming coach Brian Gordon will lead the men's team against Ohio University Saturday at 1 p.m. at Cooper Pool. The women's squad will also host OU.

- * Lynne Rutherford and Amanda Applegate are battling the flu, while Leanne Shelly and Jill Elliott could miss the meet with injuries.

Head coach Brian Gordon said the health problems make it impossible to gauge how his squad will perform.

"We have yet to be at 100 percent health for a meet," he said. "I really have no clue how we'll do."

"We could be stale, fresh, lethargic or good."

While the men's squad has luckily avoided injuries, it will nevertheless face a stiff test against OU Saturday.

Gordon expects the men's competition will not feature any outstanding races, but the final score should be hotly contested.

"This may be their weakest team in years," Gordon said of Ohio. "They have some gaping holes, most especially in the backstroke."

Falcon track hosts rivals at Fieldhouse

by John Boyle
News sports writer

The men's and women's track teams open their respective seasons this Saturday when they host Mid-American Conference rivals Western Michigan and Toledo, and non-conference foe Findlay. The women will be trying to better last year's second-place MAC finish. Head coach Steve Price is apprehensive of their chances of doing so.

"We have a strong team in terms of youth," he said. "But, because of the seniors we lost, I think it's going to be difficult to finish as high as we did last year."

Marla Gudakunst, BG record-holder in the triple jump, heads an impressive group of MAC placers back to this year's squad.

Coach Price also welcomes back his top two throwers, Jenny Johnson and Nikki Lessig. Tracy Losi, the top sophomore runner in the MAC, will be counted on to continue her strong running, according to Price.

One of Price's main concerns is injuries. Junior Jane Moeller, placer in six events at the MAC last spring, is questionable for this weekend's action because of an upper respiratory infection.

"She's probably our best all-around athlete," he said. Price said his top sprinter, Julie Shade, is doubtful for this weekend and questionable for the rest of the season.

According to Price, five-time defending MAC champ Eastern Michigan is the favorite again with Miami, Western Michigan and BG following close behind.

Men's head coach Sid Sink has similar problems with graduation losses, youth and injury.

"We graduated three of the best athletes we've had here in (Todd) Black, (Paul) Seeley and (Reed) Parks," he said. "Anytime you lose three guys that are that outstanding it takes you down a notch."

BG's strongest area, according to Sink, will be the sprint events. Scott Thompson, a national indoor hurdling qualifier, and Shawn Blanchett are the squad's top returning sprinters.

The traditional strong distance running is currently in disarray because of injuries to BG's top three runners, Tim Arndt, Brad Shaser and Eddie Nicholson.

Although the men's squad is inexperienced in most field events, Sink is counting on freshman pole vaulter Travis Downey to contribute greatly to both sprint and field events.

According to Sink, Eastern Michigan is the favorite to reclaim the MAC title with Miami and Western Michigan vying for second-place honors.

Saturday's meet begins at 11:30 a.m. in the Fieldhouse.

Late 3-pointer topples Duke

DURHAM, N.C.--Randolph Childress' 3-pointer with 11 seconds left gave Wake Forest a 69-68 victory over No. 2 Duke Thursday night.

The shot by Childress, who finished with 24 points, was clearly a 3-pointer, but the Cameron Indoor Stadium scoreboard didn't record it that way and the closest official did not signal it was a 3-pointer.

The Blue Devils (10-1, 2-1) blew a 12-point first-half lead.

Grant Hill, Duke's star down the stretch with 23 points, drove the length of the floor and put up a 15-foot jumper in the closing seconds, but the ball bounced off the rim, off the hands of teammate Chris Collins and out of bounds as the clock ran out.

Charlie Harrison tied his season high with 16 points for the Demon Deacons (11-3, 2-0 Atlantic Coast Conference).

Michigan rallies in overtime to beat Buckeyes

ANN ARBOR, Mich.--Jalen Rose scored 28 points and No. 10 Michigan went on a 9-0 run to start overtime Thursday night for an 86-75 victory over Ohio State.

Michigan (11-2, 3-0 Big Ten) rallied from a 10-point deficit in the final 15 minutes of regulation. In their previous game, the Wolverines overcame a 19-point margin at Iowa.

Ohio State (8-6, 1-2) tied it at 71 on Charles Macon's jumper with nine seconds remaining in regulation. Rose then hit a runner in the lane with ninth-tenths of a second left, but was called for traveling.

It was all Michigan in overtime. Ohio State went scoreless and fell behind by nine before Greg Simpson hit two free throws with 1:26 left.

Rose scored 20 points after halftime, including four in overtime.

Jamie Skelton led Ohio State with 20 points. Lawrence Funderburke had 16 points and 10 rebounds for the Buckeyes.

The Wolverines took a 71-69 lead on a free throw by Rose with 48 seconds left, and Ohio State turned over the ball with 30 seconds remaining.

But Michigan's Leor Derricks, in the lineup because Howard had fouled out, heaved a cross-court pass that went out of bounds near midcourt with 21 seconds left.

Cavs top Nets

RICHFIELD, Ohio--Brad Daugherty scored 12 of his 26 points on free throws, and the Cleveland Cavaliers turned up their defense after a poor start Thursday night to beat the New Jersey Nets 104-93.

The Nets have lost four of five games overall and 16 of 17 in Richfield, while the Cavaliers have won six of seven home games and eight of 12 overall.

New Jersey shot 71 percent and scored 38 points in the first quarter, but Cleveland turned it around with a trapping defense that limited the Nets to 55 points on 35 percent shooting the rest of the way. Daugherty kept the Cavs in it by sinking seven foul shots in the first period.

Seven Cavaliers reached double figures in scoring. Gerald Wilkins had 17, following a 38-point performance in a win at Orlando the previous night. Larry Nance grabbed 13 rebounds.

Chris Morris had 20 points and Derrick Coleman, Kenny Anderson and Kevin Edwards each had 19 for New Jersey.

The Nets trailed 81-76 after three quarters and pulled within two when Morris sank a 3-pointer to start the fourth.

New Jersey stayed close until Nance's dunk started a 9-0 flurry -- capped by Wilkins' 3-pointer -- that built Cleveland's lead to 100-85 with five minutes to go. The Cavs maintained a double-digit margin the rest of the way.

Hall of Fame finalists announced

CANTON, Ohio--Pittsburgh Steelers wide receiver John Stallworth and defensive backs Jimmy Johnson and Paul Krause, making their first appearances on the ballot, are among 15 finalists for induction into the Pro Football Hall of Fame announced Thursday.

Ewing takes charge against Pistons

AUBURN HILLS, Mich.--Patrick Ewing had 42 points and 16 rebounds to lead the New York Knicks to a 94-80 victory over Detroit Thursday night, the Pistons' 11th straight loss.

Slipping Falcons face Irish, Spartans

by Pat Murphy
News sports writer

The Falcon hockey team brings their inconsistent play to the Golden Dome and the great green Munn Arena this weekend. Friday night the Brown and Orange travel to Notre Dame and to Michigan State on Saturday.

After starting the season 6-0-1, BG is 4-6-1 in their last ten, including losses to 4-15-1 Illinois-Chicago and to 8-12 Ferris State. Along with these setbacks the Falcons were blasted at home by CCHA affiliate Alaska-Fairbanks.

Despite outshooting UIC by 20, BG lost by three goals. Head coach Jerry York finds a lack of intensity in the offensive zone.

"We almost doubled the attempts but lost the game," York said. "We need to bear down and be more intense in the scoring area."

In addition to the offensive woes, the Brown and Orange have slipped defensively. In their last four games, the Falcons have allowed an average of 4.4 goals a game, as opposed to 2.5 for the first 14 games. "I was concerned that we gave up five goals. That type of game we have got to win two to one," York said.

Like BG, the Fighting Irish have also hit a mid-season skid. ND is 2-6-1 overall and 2-4-1 in the CCHA since late November. Offensively, the Irish are led by sophomore Jamie Ling. Ling was a CCHA All-Freshman selection last year and has continued to sparkle. He leads ND in every offensive category: 10 goals and 14 assists for 24 points. His totals put him among the top 20 scorers in the CCHA.

The Irish have more weapons than just Ling. Captain Matt Osiecki has six goals and 12 assists for 18 points and freshman Tim Harberts has five goals and seven assists. Osiecki ranks second in scoring by defensemen in the CCHA to Falcon Jeff Wells.

Wells, embarking on a possible All-American season as the leading Falcon scorer, has five goals and 14 assists for 19 points. He had four points over the weekend, including a goal and two assists in the victory over the Flames. "He is having a dominant year in the eyes of our coaching staff and his teammates," York said. "I think the main thing with Jeff is his pressure under fire. His skating ability is second to none in our league."

"He has gotten better every year, since not making the first trip his freshman year to an All-American candidate this year," York added.

BG invades Munn Arena for the second time this season, coming off a 2-2 tie on November 20. The Spartans come in with a 12-6-3 record overall and 9-4-3 in the CCHA.

Steve Guolla leads MSU with 35 points on 13 goals and 22 assists. Adding to the Spartan offense are Rem Murray 7-23-30, Anson Carter 16-10-26 and Steve Suk 7-17-24. Goalie Mike Buzak leads the league overall in goaltending with a save percentage at .903.

"Michigan State on Saturday is a renewal of a pretty intense rivalry," York said.

Opposite styles collide in NFC playoff matchup

by Dennis Georgatos
The Associated Press

SAN FRANCISCO--Saturday's NFC playoff game between the New York Giants and San Francisco 49ers shapes up as a collision of opposites and nowhere are the differences more apparent than in the opposing quarterbacks.

Steve Young brings flair and an element of unpredictability to the 49ers' high-powered offense. He is at the peak of his career, having led the league in passing the past three years. But he hungers for the recognition that comes with postseason success.

Phil Simms has been rejuvenated in his 15th season, but at 38 he's the oldest starter at any position in the playoffs. He commands an offense that relies largely on the grit of its runners and blockers. While he doesn't have Young's impressive passing statistics, he has a record of postseason success, including an MVP award in the Giants' 1987 Super Bowl victory over the Denver Broncos.

The confrontation of Simms and Young also represents different endings to quarterback controversies in New York and San Francisco.

"In New York, they kept the old guy and out there they kept the young guy," Simms said.

First-year Giants coach Dan Reeves picked Simms over Jeff Hostetler, who led the Giants to a victory over Buffalo in the 1991 Super Bowl while replacing the injured Simms. Hostetler went to the Los Angeles Raiders as a free agent.

Joe Montana, skeptical of a last-minute 49ers' offer to bench Young and give him his job back, went to Kansas City in a trade last April.

The irony is not lost on Simms, nor is he surprised that all four are in the playoffs on separate teams.

"What's great is it's worked out for everybody," he said. "Joe's in Kansas City playing in the playoffs. Jeff's in Los Angeles, it's worked out good for him. And it's worked out for me here."

"I've gotten to know Steve a little. I want to beat him just as much as I wanted to beat Joe. You don't have to say anything about him after these three years he's put up. Everybody's measuring against him now."

Young has led the 49ers to a 24-8 record over the past two seasons, but he enters Saturday's game anxious to bury the memory of six turnovers -- three fumbles and three interceptions -- in two playoff games last year. He was intercepted twice in San Francisco's 30-20 loss to Dallas.

EMU flying high at 3-0

by Rusty Miller
The Associated Press

Former Eastern Michigan baseball star Chris Hoiles will have his jersey retired at half-time of the Eagles' game Saturday against Ball State in Ypsilanti, Mich.

While the Baltimore Orioles long-ball hitting catcher is being honored, the EMU basketball team will be trying to hit its own grand slam.

A victory over Ball State would move the Eagles to a spotless 4-0 on the year in the Mid-American Conference.

Eastern is coming off a 67-55 victory at Kent Wednesday night that saw the Eagles go 10 deep on their bench. EMU outscored the Flashes 34-22 with its second line.

Eastern now stands tied for the top spot in the MAC with Miami of Ohio, both at 8-3 overall and 3-0 in the conference.

Other MAC games Saturday find Western Michigan at Central Michigan, Akron at Ohio U., Miami at Bowling Green and Kent at Toledo.

Behind the top two come Western (9-3, 2-1), Kent and Bowling Green (both 7-4, 2-1), followed by Ohio U. (9-5), Toledo (6-5) and Ball State (6-5), all 1-2 in league play. Akron (6-5) and Central Michigan (1-10) both are 0-3 in the MAC.

"Eastern is a good team that feeds off other teams' turnovers," said Kent coach Dave Grube after Wednesday's defeat.

But the Eagles are more than that. They have won their last four games despite ranking next to last in the MAC in team defense.

Eastern was picked to finish fifth in the preseason balloting by media. Miami was sixth.

Both have followed a similar path to early superiority in the MAC. Eastern is first (82.7 points a game) and Miami second (82.1) in scoring. Both are among the leaders in rebounding margin (Miami is second at 6.1, Eastern fifth at 4.0) and both are in the upper division in field-goal percentage and 3-point shooting percentage.

Eastern has gotten solid production out of junior Kareem Carpenter, who is third in the MAC in rebounding with 8.5 a game and second in field-goal percentage (.603). Carpenter is also fifth in scoring (18.6 ppg).

James Reed provides a perfect complement, leading the MAC with 5.1 assists a game and second in steals with 2.4 per contest.

The outside firepower comes from senior guard Ellery Morgan, averaging 12.6 points a game while shooting 49 percent from 3-point range.

Jordan working out toward White Sox

The Associated Press

CHICAGO--Michael Jordan has been working out at Comiskey Park this winter and not just to stay in shape or fight boredom.

Jordan, craving a new challenge just months after retiring from the Chicago Bulls, thinks he's found one. He wants to play baseball with the Chicago White Sox.

"I want to go to spring training for one reason and that's to make the team," Jordan was quoted as saying in Thursday's editions of the Chicago Tribune. "This is no fantasy. I plan to be in Sarasota by mid-February. If the White Sox were to tell me that they didn't think I was good enough to make the team, and that they don't want me at spring training, then I would accept their wishes and not go."

Jordan said if he keeps improving during his three-hour, five-day-a-week workouts, he thinks he can make the team even though he hasn't played baseball regularly since he was a teenager in Wilmington, N.C.

White Sox general manager Ron Schueler said Thursday that the likelihood of Jordan making the team this season "is at best a long shot."

He said a decision will be made next month on whether to offer him the invitation to spring training. White Sox pitchers and catchers report Feb. 16 and the position players five days later.

Schueler said it would have to be a situation where Jordan could help the White Sox or "it wouldn't be fair to both sides..."

Schueler wonders whether Jordan will make the adjustment to live pitching, not the kind you get in a batting cage or from a batting practice pitcher.

"There's a lot of difference between 70 mph and 90 mph," said Schueler, 40-48 in eight major league seasons.

Schueler finally learned Wednesday that Jordan was serious about coming to spring training.

"I heard some of the comments from some of the other players that he has good bat speed and obviously good hand and eye coordination. I think that pumped Michael up. We have to wait and see, it's way too early," Schueler said.

Jordan has been joined recently at the workouts by several White Sox players. The White Sox have a vacancy in right field after Ellis Burks signed with the Colorado Rockies.

"He does have a good loose arm but I haven't seen it from the outfield," Schueler said.

The appearance of Jordan would create a circus atmosphere much larger than the one last spring, when Bo Jackson was making a comeback from hip replacement surgery.

"I talked to Frank Thomas and Jack McDowell and Robin Ventura and gave them my stand," Schueler said. "I don't want to take anything away from them. Everything they earned, they deserved. I think the first day there would be tremendous media but then we would put an end to it and settle it down to play baseball."

Jordan retired from the Bulls on Oct. 6, upstaging the White Sox as they played the Toronto Blue Jays in Game 1 of the AL playoffs.

"I'm serious. My father thought I could be a major-league baseball player, and I'm sure that right now he can see me trying,"

The Associated Press/

Former Chicago Bulls star Michael Jordan, shown talking to San Francisco Giants' Barry Bonds during All-Star workouts, has been taking batting practice and playing catch with White Sox players at Comiskey Park in an effort to make the team.

Jordan said. "He's watching every move that I make."

Jordan's father, James, was slain last August.

When he retired, Jordan said he wanted more time with his family and less in the limelight.

He noted Wednesday that baseball teams often spend four or five days in one city.

"It's not like the NBA, where you'd fly out after every game. I'd like to take my wife and children with me on the road," he said. "There were certain things I was thinking when I retired that I didn't want to express to anyone. I know this will put me back in front of people. But I hope they'll be looking at me in a different light."

Bye teams have advantage

by Dave Goldberg
The Associated Press

A word to the wise: While teams coming off a bye did poorly in the regular season against teams that had played the previous week, the playoffs are different.

That is, the best teams usually win and the best teams (with one exception) are the teams that got last week off.

So here are this week's games ... in order of appearance.

Raiders (plus 6) at Buffalo

The Los Angeles track club loved that 70-degree weather in the Coliseum. Now they get 7-degree weather.

OK, the Raiders won on Dec. 5, 25-24, but they haven't been the most consistent team this season. Yes, they beat Denver three times this year, but they always beat Denver -- winning twice in Buffalo in one season is unlikely at best.

OK, this isn't the same Bills offense that clobbered the Raiders 51-3 in the 1990 AFC title game. And Jeff Hostetler isn't Jay Schroeder, he's the quarterback that beat the Bills in the Super Bowl for the Giants that year.

But you can run against the Raiders.

And Thurman Thomas will. BILLS, 21-14

New York Giants (plus 8) at San Francisco

The Giants were the one team that played last week that probably deserved a bye -- their record was better than the 49ers, but they had the misfortune to play in a division with Dallas.

So why the eight-point spread? Bill Walsh had a theory that San Francisco's proximity to Nevada always inflated the line on the Niners (he neglected to say that they also were very good.)

These 49ers still have the explosive offense. But the unsung defense that used to win Super Bowls for them now deserves to be unsung -- it gave up 4.5 yards per rush, second worst in the league, not exactly the statistic you want going into the game with the league's best rushing attack.

Make this one a lot like the 1990 Super Bowl -- the Giants control the ball, the Niners move it.

49ERS, 20-19

Green Bay (plus 13) at Dallas

The Packers say that when they lost 36-14 to Dallas early in the season, they were in awe of the Super Bowl champions. That won't happen again.

The Giants, who lost 31-9 in Dallas, said that before they played Dallas again and took them to overtime. But this is back in Dallas, not in Green Bay, and the Packers are much more mistake-prone than the Giants.

One other thing -- Erik Williams has usually done a good job on Reggie White.

If Emmitt Smith's shoulder isn't ready, everything changes. Otherwise, give the Packers five points for experience and make it ...

COWBOYS, 31-14.

Kansas City (plus 7) at Houston

Someone asked Marty Schottenheimer Monday: "Do you think you have a chance to win?" "That's what we're in business for," he replied.

The Chiefs have two shots: - The law of averages -- when a team wins 11 in a row, like the Oilers, something has to give.

- Joe Montana. The last time he faced a Buddy Ryan defense, he was sacked nine times.
